PRESIDENTS CORNER

Well, here it is, February. I am suffering from, as I'm sure we all are, Cabin Fever. Each time the wind blows, and the rain comes in like a lion, my mind wanders to the Forests and the amount of possible damage caused by same. I've cleaned my saddles, repaired my tack and thought –the next warm day I'm in the woods. Sadly, when the next warm day comes there's wood to cut, stalls to clean and a multitude of outside chores that need doing. I'm retired! What in the world am I thinking? Just this week one of our Recon riders posted a ride date for a ride. The answer was sorry, I have to work. The thing about this is that most of our members aren't retired and work in the trades or sales. My answer to the conundrum is simply this: Ride when you can, never mind the weather, the chores? Well, they'll still be there for another day. I know I'm going to make more of an effort to hit the trails. My horse and I both need the exercise.

LEAVE NO TRACE
PRINCIPLE #4

LEAVE WHAT YOU FIND
(One of the most difficult Principles not only to follow but teach as well)

Winter weather is finally here. Hunting season has ended; torrential rains are being followed closely by cold temperatures and gusty winds. Besides the obvious effect of driving us all a little closer to the campfire, our favorite trails and mountains are changing appearance and lying quiet (for the most part). As you all know the surrounding mountains that we ride and hike are full of history and artifacts from our ancestors and Native Americans. Those torrential rains are doing more than just knocking the dust off the roads and giving pastures much needed moisture.

A lot of those artifacts are being uncovered and becoming more obvious to forest visitors. So now comes spring, along with that, comes the greater numbers of users looking to experience the great outdoors. Stay with me folks ... I'm going somewhere with this ☺ .

My facts are a bit “outdated” but indicate the direction we are traveling. In the mid 60’s, the number of visitors to our national parks nationwide was approximately 230 million. In the late 1990s that same number had risen to 970million. Our national forests fared no better, rising from 70 million to 700 million in that same time frame. As this number increased, the impact of the nations “love for the outdoors” increased exponentially.

As those numbers continue to spiral upwards, National Parks, over a billion now, the best avenue to mitigating the impact continues to be education. Yes enforcement works, and the money that we use for enforcement could possibly be better used for trail construction and repairs. So what's all this have to do with "LEAVE WHAT YOU FIND"?

Obviously we know the difference between trash and those things we find in the forests that belong there. Equestrians, backpackers, ATV users all have the responsibility to educate our groups. Leave what you find pertains to wild flowers, rocks, sheds or artifacts. Did you know that anything that is found in a National Park that can be dated to be 25 yrs. old is considered to be an artifact and is illegal to remove? Sheds (also illegal to remove – Shed hunting permit required - from national forests and subject to fines) are a food / salt source for a lot of our forest rodents. Doesn't sound like being of great importance until you consider that for the ecosystem to maintain balance every biological found in the forest serves a purpose? When a food source is removed the ecosystem as a whole suffers.

This is a very important issue that gets very little conscious thought. As forest users, it is our responsibility to educate our youth and to stress the importance of taking only pictures and leaving only footprints.

COOKS CORNER

Submit your favorite Trail Snack recipe: horsepacker47@yahoo.com

EASY COW CAMP CHILI CON CARNE

2lbs. ground beef or (Roast prepared beforehand)

2 c. chopped onion

1½ c. chopped green pepper, or chilies – red or green or

Poblano pepper (ancho)

2 - 1lb. cans tomatoes, (4 cups) diced

2 - 1lb. cans dark red kidney beans (4 cups) drained (optional)

2 - 8oz. cans tomato sauce

2 tsp. salt

2-4 tsp. chili powder

2 bay leaves

In a 12” Dutch oven cook meat, onion, and green pepper till meat is lightly browned and vegetables are tender. Stir in remaining ingredients, cover and simmer for one hour.

Remove bay leaves. Makes about 8 servings, simmer slowly over a camp fire on tripod, Charcoal only - 10 on bottom, 15 on top – careful when you lift the lid to stir.

Hope to see you soon out on the trail!
